FOREWORD

Hello, and thank you very much for your interest in the Advocacy and Participation Worker role with Jersey Cares.

We are looking for someone tenacious, driven, brave and thoughtful. You will share our vision of love belonging and opportunity for people with experience of care. You will have experience of working with children and young people and/or adults at a point of need in their lives. If this is you, and you are concerned you may not meet all the criteria, please do contact us to discuss or attend one of the information sessions detailed at the end of the pack.

We will provide a comprehensive advocacy and participation training programme to include shadowing, mentoring and a fully-funded level 4 advocacy qualification completed in work hours. You will be supported by an in-house team of experts committed to a vision of love, belonging and opportunity, introduced to inspirational leaders and be part of a global movement for transformational change of the care system.

While this work is dynamic, hopeful, and energising, it is not for the faint-hearted! You will have your own driving passion for a deep commitment to this work but will be self-aware enough to ensure that our work is driven by collective experiences and our platform used to amplify these. We welcome applicants with lived experiences of the 'care system'.

You will be able to demonstrate that you can navigate the landscape of 'care' alongside individuals with wisdom, kindness and 'stickability'. You will be able to retain hope, especially when there are setbacks, keep calm even when there is chaos and have an accessible and warm approach to advocacy.

There is no escaping that the work is tough and you will also need good self-discipline and self-care. We will support this through insisting you only work your hours and no more, providing monthly 1-1s, a supportive team environment and 6-8 resilience coaching sessions per year.

At Jersey Cares we believe that everyone needs someone who loves them, somewhere to belong and something to aspire to. We have worked since our inception in 2017 to create a model which drives change in this direction within the care system in Jersey. We have listened carefully to people with lived experience of care and carried out our own action research to understand what it would take here in Jersey for people with experience of care to be heard and the 'system' to be transformed. Our model reflects and builds on this learning. The Listen Louder report will give you more detail on this.

We are an independent organisation, listening to and amplifying the voices of people with experience of care through 1-1 advocacy, community development and campaigning. We partner closely with organisations who share our aim of love being the guiding principle of the care of children rather than, all too often, its casualty.

During our five years offering advocacy to people with experience of care we have developed strong, authentic, and effective relational practice and have gained the trust of those who often have the least reason to give it. Our network is wide and growing. Our policies and practice are robust and the support and training we provide the team is excellent. The work and reach is developing as we hone niche skills and knowledge in the rights of children in care and become effective at influencing for wider change.

Thank you for your interest in our work and vision.

ABOUT JERSEY CARES

At Jersey Cares we believe that everybody needs somebody who loves them, somewhere they belong and something to aspire to.

At Jersey Cares we know that when the State get involved in a child's life, they have already experienced significant trauma. We know too that, too often, this trauma continues in the 'care system' within which they seek, and many times fail to find belonging. The move to 'independence' in their late teens is often a lonely walk into a scary place, with few or no ties to people who care.

Many countries are realising that the solution lies in listening to people who are, and were in care, and acting informed by what you have heard. This turns an intractable problem of service delivery into a community mission of enabling love, belonging and opportunity for those who need it most.

Jersey Cares enables the transformation of care by offering:

ADVOCACY - supporting people with experience of care to be heard;

COMMUNITY - enabling people with experience of care to come together and recreate some of the patterns of family life through activities, meals, trips and, crucially, relationships;

NETWORK - bringing together a wide range of businesses, politicians, charities and engaged individuals to offer practical support, hold the Government to account and to show they care;

INFLUENCING - using what is learnt in advocacy and our relationships with experts across the UK to drive change in public awareness, policy, legislation and 'services'

“

I get annoyed when my friends complain about their parents. They don't know how lucky they are just to say 'Mum and Dad'.

“

It takes a village to raise a child.
